2017 TEXRP State Conference

By Educators for Educators

Produced by Legal Digest & Texas Educators for Restorative Practices

October 23rd & 24th – Arlington Convention Center

A 2-day restorative conference changing the way educators view discipline

The use of Restorative Practices is a modern approach that is quickly gaining traction across the state of Texas. Educators in the classroom are looking for effective ways to improve student behaviors and build relationships with millennial learners. Administrators are looking for alternative strategies to the ineffective and archaic approaches of traditional discipline, but are not willing to give up the concept that students must learn a lesson, be held accountable for their actions, and receive some type of consequence in order for change to take place. What better way than to experience Restorative Practices than a first-hand curate experience by educators for educators? This unparalleled approach to developing an educators conference allows the TEXRP State Conference to assemble experienced educators from across the state and country to provide a forum where educators can:

- EXPERIENCE THE FLIP on how to use Restorative Practices to take Discipline Outside the Box!
- DISCOVER relational strategies that are EFFECTIVE.
- ENGAGE in the proactive tools that are making a difference in hundreds of classrooms across the state.
- REFLECT with authentic educators that are struggling with our current mindset of school discipline.
- DISCERN how to respond to student discipline issues with a differentiated approach to discipline.

The 2017 TEXRP State Conference is a must-attend gathering for superintendents, school leaders, principals, assistant principals, counselors, deans, teachers, students, student resource officers, parents and community members - your entire village is welcome!

The bulk of the conference is made up of customized breakout sessions for you to choose from and create your own schedule.
